WATER's Feminist Conversations in Religion Series Presents

"Suffering and Salvation in Ciudad Juárez"

An hour-long teleconference with Nancy Pineda-Madrid

Wednesday, May 11, 2011
1 pm - 2 pm EDT

Nancy Pineda-Madrid is assistant professor of theology and U.S. Latino/a ministry at Boston College's School of Theology and Ministry. She holds a doctoral degree in systematic and philosophical theology from the Graduate Theological Union.

Dr. Pineda-Madrid has recently finished a book entitled Suffering and Salvation in Ciudad Juárez that examines the problematic intersection of suffering and the quest for salvation from a Latina feminist perspective. It takes the feminicide in Ciudad Juárez as its point of departure. The book will be released in July 2011.

Dr. Pineda-Madrid is a welcome contributor to WATER's newest book New Feminist Christianity: Many Voices, Many Views edited by Mary E. Hunt and Diann L. Neu (SkyLight Paths, 2010). Her essay in the volume is titled "Latina Feminist Theology: Charting Future Discourse."

Gather your friends and colleagues for lunch and join in on the conversation. This is also a great opportunity for study groups and university or seminary classes to hear from an expert in the field.

To register, email the words "register me" to waterstaff@hers.com by May 10 and you will receive dial-in info.
